Dedication

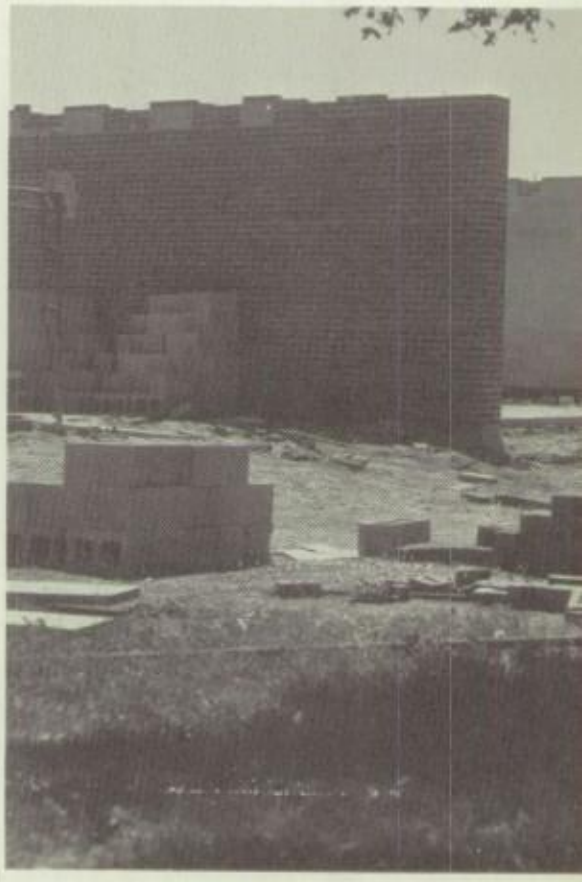
We wish to dedicate the 1965 RAIDORIAN to our former principal, Mrs. Emery Johnson, and to the ideals she represents. Her devotion to the education of each student she encountered left in its wake a more competent group of individuals reaching toward adulthood.

In the tumultuous world of today, Mrs. Johnson gave those she advised and instructed in English and literature a firm background in the past from which to seek their particular road to the future. Through her many outside endeavors for the school, directing the senior play and supervising the library, she exemplified a necessary lesson for all--that of flexibility without deviation from her life goal.

Our School . . .

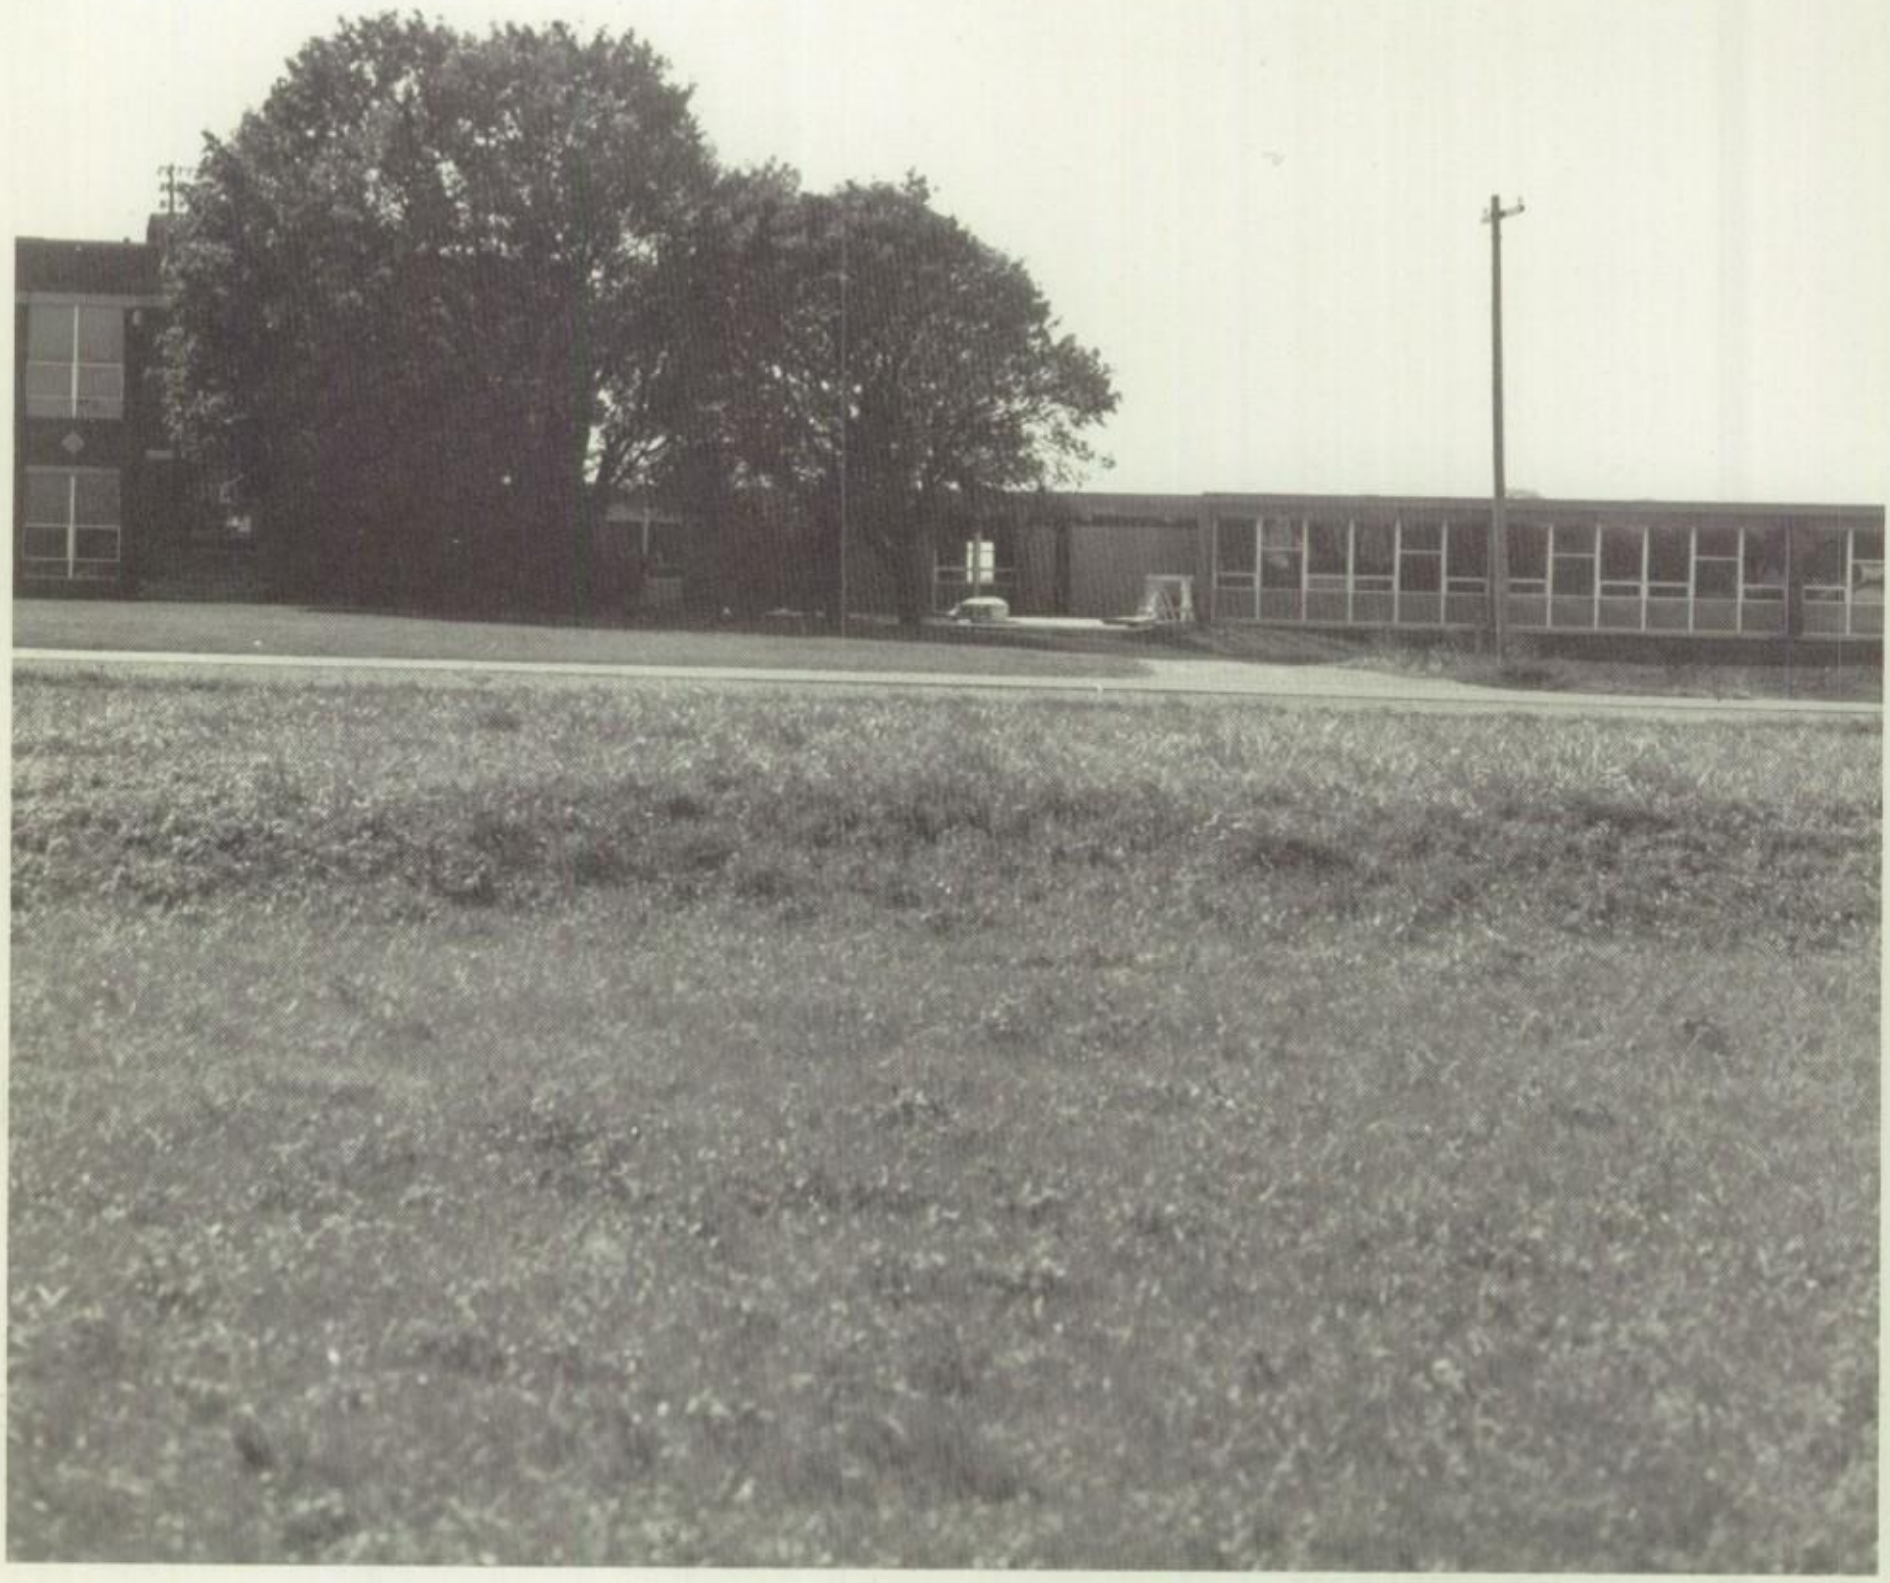
A project of rebuilding and renewal has marked this school year. A rapidly expanding high school enrollment, which is expected to reach two hundred thirty-nine by 1971-1972, had made the old facilities inadequate. The science laboratory, as well as work areas of other classes, was also in need of refurbishing and expanding.

For these reasons, on November 23, 1963, voters generously approved a two hundred fifty thousand dollar bond issue for the necessary modernization of our school. The completed revision provides seven new grade school classrooms, a faculty room, additional office space, two washrooms, a janitor's storage area, and new agriculture and shop rooms. Both the cafeteria and the kitchen are enlarged. The remodeled science laboratory is now one of the most modern in the area.



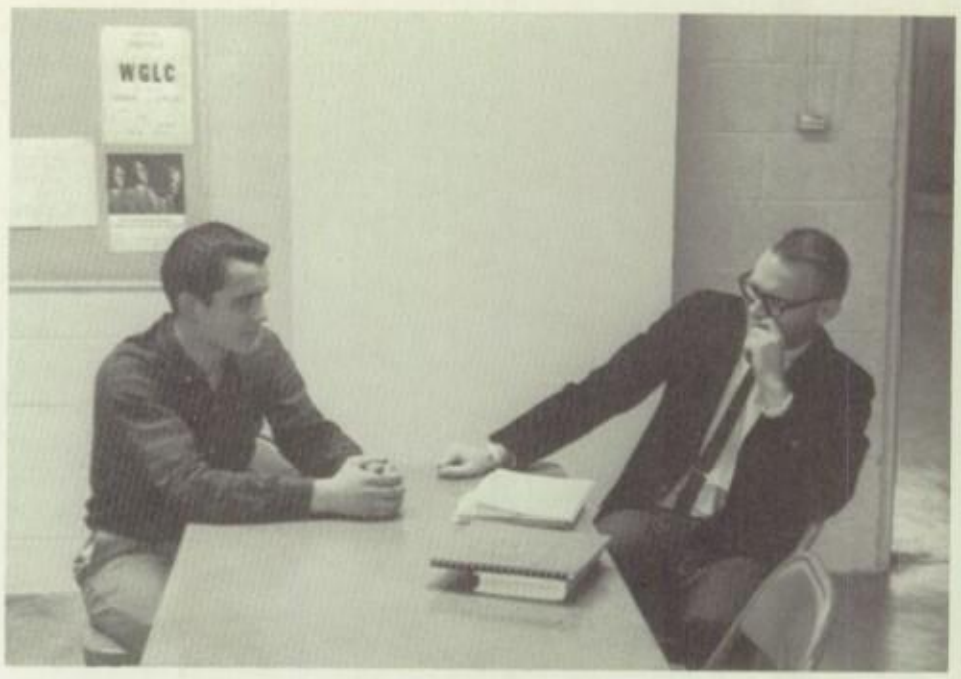
The Building Process . . .

The new addition was dedicated on February 21, 1965. It is our hope that these new and expanded facilities will remind the student body of a well-known truism, "the greater the opportunity, the greater the responsibility."



. . . The Finished Product

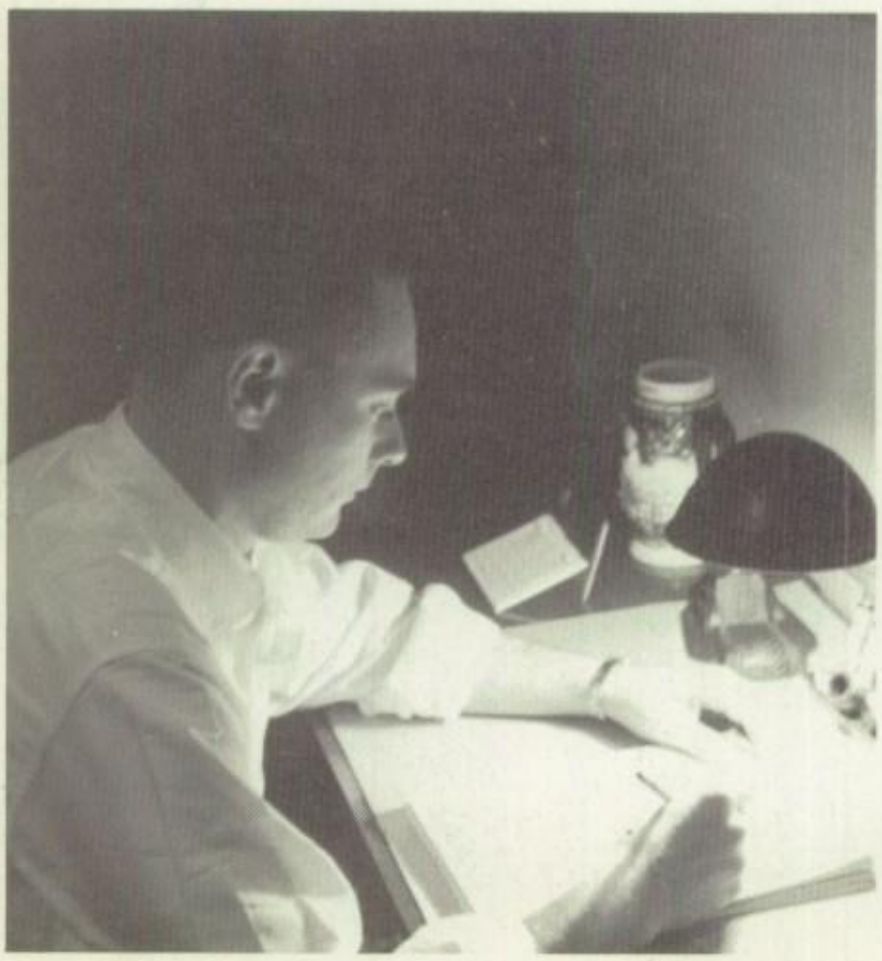
SCHOOL LIFE



Students and new teachers take time to become acquainted and discuss studies.

School news is now broadcast over WGLC, Mendota. Students gather news and report the activities of their organizations by making a tape recording which is being replayed every Thursday afternoon.

Inside E.H.S.



Students are not the only ones who stay up late studying. More often teachers are seen "burning the midnight oil."

The former shop and ag. rooms were remodeled into a separate dining room to accommodate high school students and teachers. This room is also used as a study hall during the homeroom period.

Our library has a new look this year under the direction of Miss Louden, a graduate librarian. The books have been catalogued and a card file has been added.

Earlville Expands in Size, Facilities

This year a member of the community was asked to join our school life. Mrs. Audrey Harbison, hired as a lay teacher, supervises four study halls.

It isn't always the students with problems; often the school has its own as in this case of the leaky ceiling.

With only ten minutes to go, Earlville is tackled on the forty-yard line.

Alumni View

The football team's original, thought-provoking float shows many hours of hard work. The theme is "We'll Finish the Job Tonight."

The Raiders' good defense is put into action during the Plano-Earlville game.

Second place award, "Charge Right Through" is deftly illustrated by the freshman class float.

In spite of the cool evening, the cheerleaders maintain school spirit with a rousing chant for victory.

a Winning Game

The junior class wins first place with their green, flip-flop fish.

A current fad, the Beatles, even enters into the float competition. The sophomore class is awarded third place.

The 1963 homecoming king, Willard Landers, crowns Sandra Pickert, queen of the 1964 festivities. She will reign over the dance following the game.

Homecoming Dance Climaxes

Homecoming is more than remembering the past, or looking forward to the future. The key-note of this season is working together, cooperation. Choosing the king and queen candidates . . .

Trying to construct a winning float for the parade . . .

Rehearsing the halftime show . . .

Cheering the team to victory.

Once the preparations are finished, and the big day has begun, everyone relaxes and enjoys the fruit of his labors.

The King, Queen, and their court traditionally lead the first dance.

a Successful Game

Craig Carter and Sandra Pickert are elected King and Queen for the Annual Homecoming Festivities.

EUROPEAN TOUR AWARDED. Previous to boarding the plane for the flight to Europe with the American Youth Band of 1964, Ann Jones smiles good-bye.

Carolyn Lonie, President of National Honor Society, Introduces Dr. Goff, the guest speaker at our annual honor banquet.

Honor Students Recognized

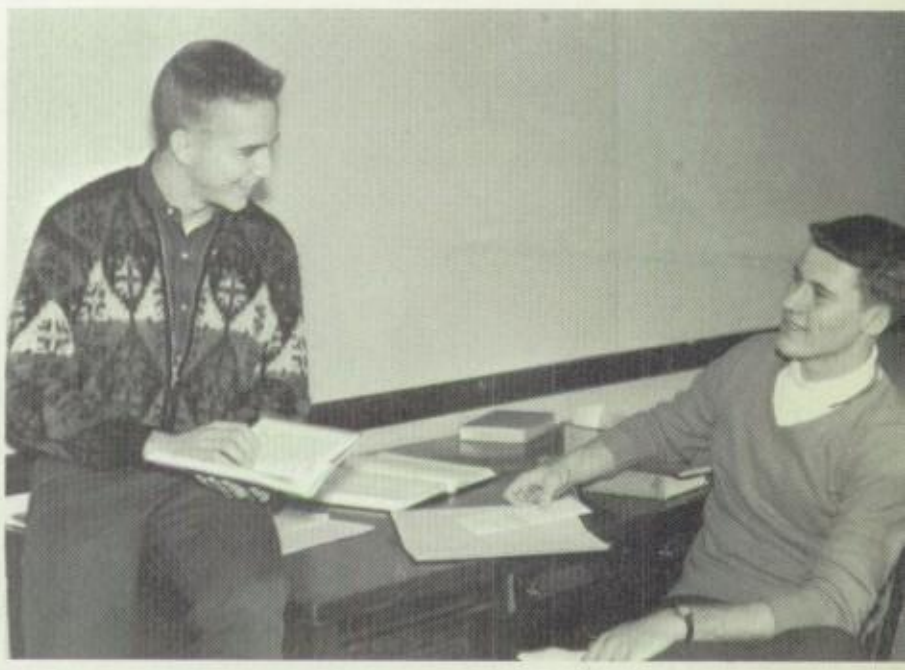
HOMEMAKING HONOREE. Deanna Boyles is presented the Betty Crocker Award after taking a comprehensive test which determines the winner.

After a delicious meal, members of the Hootenanny group present at the honor banquet, entertain their fellow students with a variety of well-known folk songs.

This year's honor banquet is held in Northern Illinois University's Student Union.

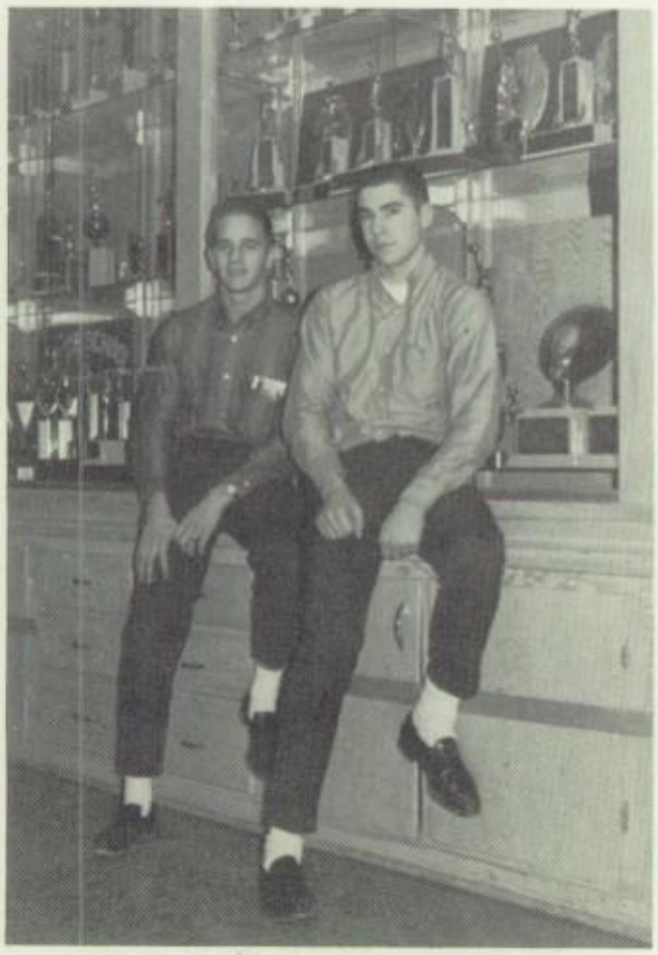
RECEIVES RECOGNITION. Linda Gould expresses her joy in receiving a National Merit Commendation for a high rating.

TOURS WITH YOUTH BAND. Congratulations are extended to Craig Carter who has been chosen to tour Europe with the American Youth Band.



BOYS' STATE DELEGATES. Jim Feld and Don Blakeslee are selected as the 1964 representatives for Premier Boys' State Fairgrounds.

OUTSTANDING FOOTBALL. Jim Feld is chosen this year as football's most valuable player while Ron Rave receives the award for the most tackles.



Outstanding Achievements

D.A.R. HONORS SENIOR. The senior class and the faculty members have chosen Linda Gould as the recipient of the D.A.R. award. This award is based on the qualities of leadership, dependability, service, patriotism, citizenship, and loyalty.

The cast of the Junior play, "Grandma's Best Years," pauses briefly and smiles in relief after a very successful performance.

Jim Meyerson (Ron Rave) shows his affection for his girlfriend Joyce Abbot (Mary Harris) when they finally manage to have a moment of privacy.

The Junior Class Presents "Grandma's Best Years"

Bubbles (Rita Peterson) is quickly disciplined by her father when she starts twisting at the distinguished dinner party given by Mrs. Abbot for her socialite friends.

Miss Quelch (Ruth Wright) steps back in disgust when Edwin Carlson (Norman Martin) mistakes her for his girlfriend.

The typing room is bustling with activity as the students hurry to complete their work so they can enjoy the Christmas festivities.

Music by the Vengents supplies a "swinging" atmosphere for the Christmas dance sponsored by the F.H.A.

Christmas Brings Frenzied Activity

The overabundance of food provides the Spanish students with a very satisfying meal.

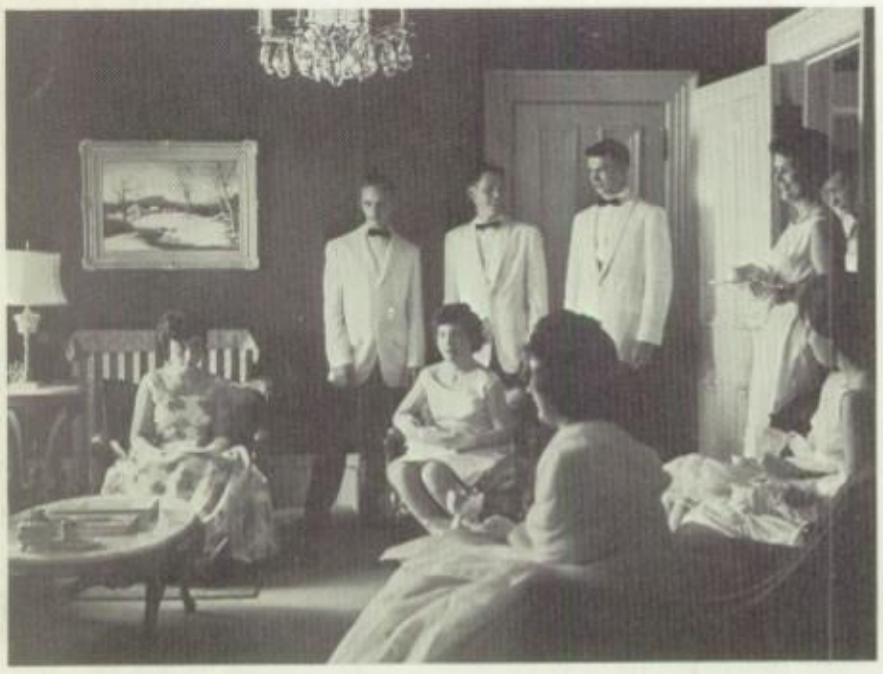
With a vicious swing, Mary Ellen Snell tries to break the Piñata at the annual Spanish Club Christmas party.

The ingenious Sophomore Students present a skit at the Christmas party that is both different and hilarious.

Mr. Wicke, standing on the front steps of Mrs. Johnson's home, greets Mr. Bann and his guest.

Kathy and Pat Landers are welcomed to Mrs. Johnson's Pre-Prom Tea.

"Candyland" Illusion . . .



The members of the junior and senior classes enjoy their social hour at a tea which is sponsored annually by Mrs. Johnson on the evening of the Junior-Senior Prom.

The hostess, Mrs. Johnson, serves Mrs. Duckels at the tea table.

The servers, five boys and five girls, are chosen from the sophomore class and help with the banquet that precedes the dance.

Speaking for the entire faculty and student body, Don Blakeslee, Jim Feld, Mr. and Mrs. Wicke, and Mrs. Johnson express their appreciation of the Prom.

Before being served at the banquet table, several members of the junior class have a merry chat with Mr. and Mrs. Montooth.

The Dinner That Preceded It . . .

The women of the Altar and Rosary Society pause briefly before making the final preparations for the formal dinner held in the Father Hahn Center.

Under the canopy of the "Candyland" wishing well, a member of the junior class and his date are served punch and cookies.

Van Morken prepares to steal a gumdrop from the candy tree for his date.

Stan Roberts and his band provide the lovely music for the "Candyland Illusion."

and the Dance That Followed.

Mr. and Mrs. Hewitt, Gerald Martin, and Linda Gould discuss their problem of terminating the grand march.

Jerry Thorne and Terry Englehart are glad to see the end of the long tunnel which is being formed by the other dancers.

The entire junior-senior classes and their dates end the dance with a spirited version of the grand march.

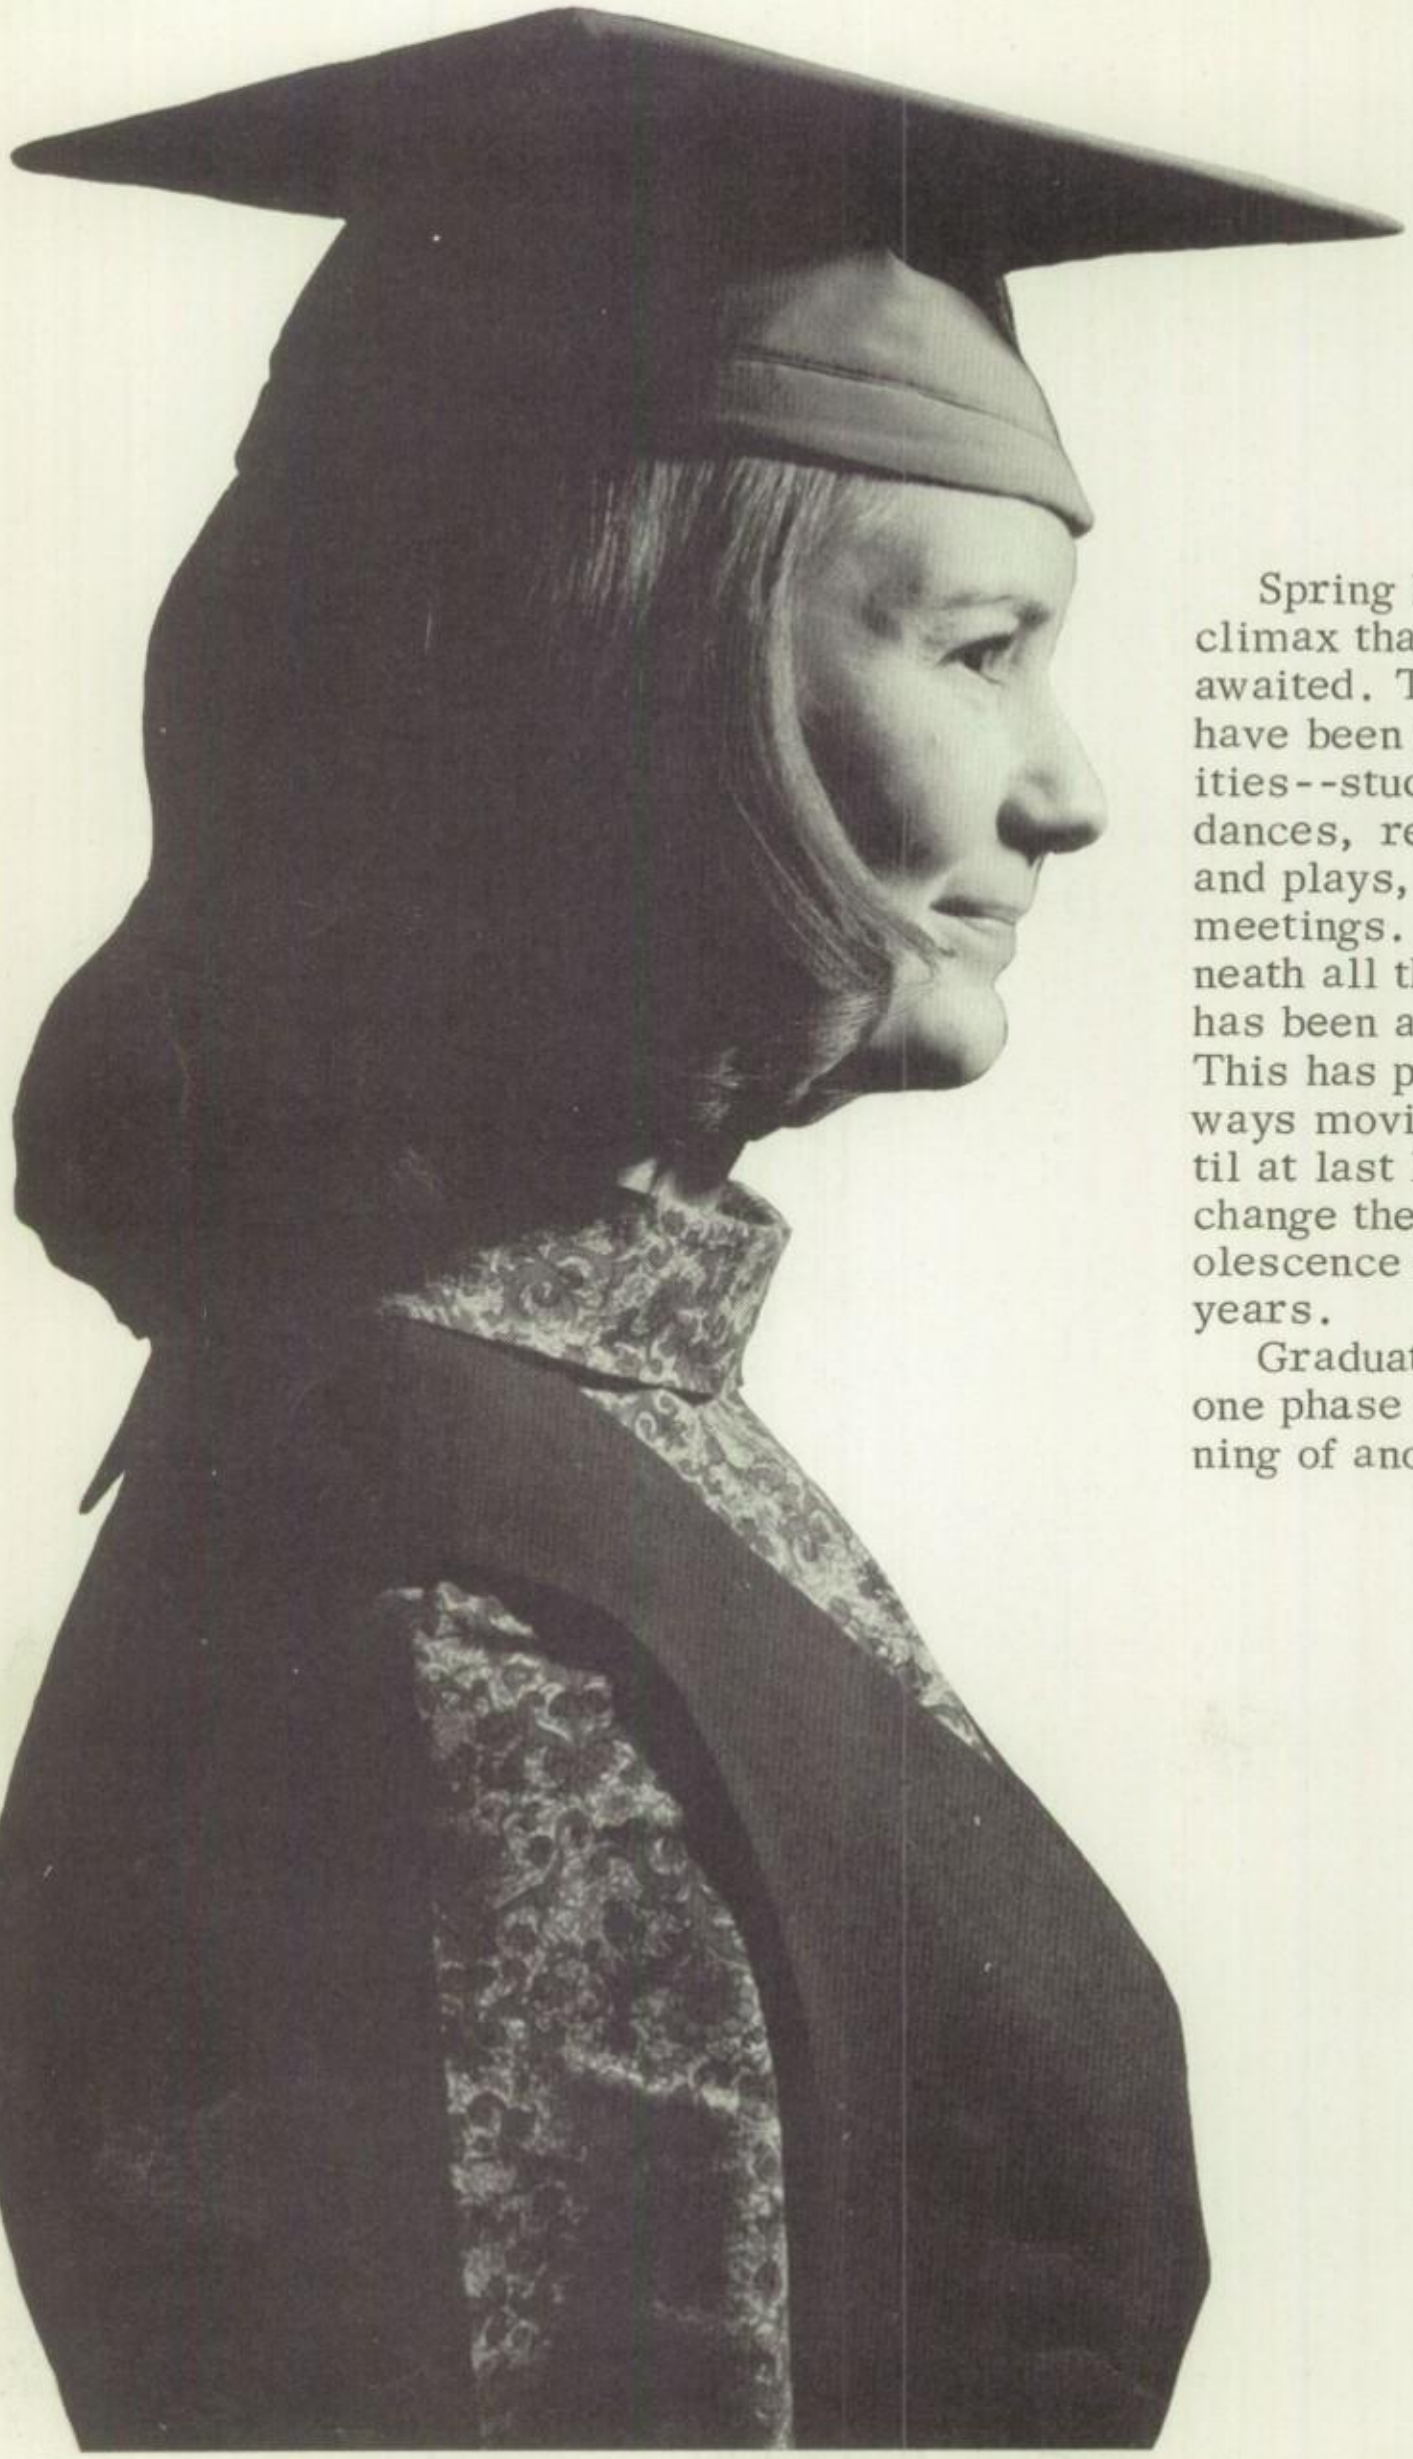
Having a good reason to smile, the cast pauses briefly after their successful performance of "The Egg and I."

"The Egg and I"—a Great Success

The chronic complainer, Diana Howey, moans to her neighbors of her varicose veins.

Hiding under the umbrella, Joan (Mary Myers) and J. J., her boy friend (Danny Rust) pretend to be studying their algebra.

Thirty-Two Seniors Graduate on June 3



Spring brings graduation, the climax that the Seniors have long awaited. The past nine months have been filled with many activities--studying, exams, games, dances, rehearsels for concerts and plays, and organizational meetings. Consequently, underneath all the work and good times has been a rising current of haste. This has pushed us onward, always moving always growing, until at last life requires us to exchange the responsibilities of adolescence for those of maturer years.

Graduation--it is the end of one phase of life and the beginning of another.

N.H.S. Installs Three New Members

The members of the National Honor Society receive their certificates of membership from Mr. Rieke at an assembly held during the second semester.

The National Honor Society is founded upon the principle that true education creates a well-rounded personality and thus honors the person who in the estimation of his teachers is developing himself fully in the areas of scholarship, leadership, service, and character.

Three new members were installed this year at a candlelight ceremony during an assembly held before the student body and faculty.

In the spring two events are included on the N.H.S. calendar--the president presiding over the Scholastic Banquet, and the election of the new members.

Being a member of the Earlville chapter, now in its fourth year, is a distinct honor for any student and will be advantageous to him in later life.

The Student Council chooses interesting and educational assemblies for the student body.

The Student Council is the student governing body of our high school. Each class selects three of its members every year to represent them in this organization. The president is elected by the student body at a spring assembly, while the other officers are chosen by the council during the first fall meeting.

This year, to be placed on the honor roll, the students must have no grade lower than a "B". However, the high honor roll requires all "A's". The student council requirements have remained the same which includes maintaining a "B" average. If the member's grades are below this level, he is placed on probation for one six weeks' period. If, at the end of that time, he has not raised his grades, the council replaces him with another member of his class.

Throughout the school year, this organization sponsors several extra-curricular activities. Their chief projects are the annual Homecoming parade, program, and dance; the high school Christmas party, the annual scholastic banquet, and the selection of assemblies to be presented throughout the school year.

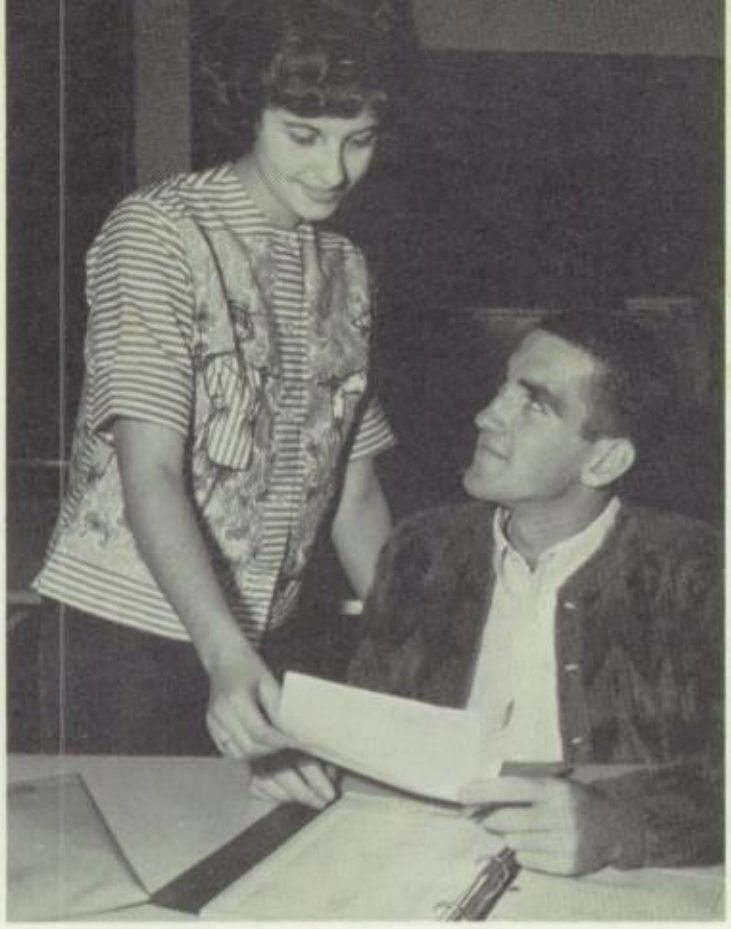
Raidorian Captures

Linda Gould, RAIDORIAN editor, pauses while checking names for the newly-introduced yearbook index.

The yearbook is designed and constructed outside of school hours during summer meetings and one or two weekly sessions throughout the school year.

In May, 1964, several members of the editorial staff attended the NISPA convention at Northern Illinois University. Last year's book was submitted to the National Scholastic Press Rating Association and received a first-class honor rating.

The business staff collects contributions from businessmen in Earlville and the surrounding area. They handle the sale of yearbooks during the campaign week. Production and content of the book itself is handled entirely by the members of the editiorial staff.



Sandy Lane, business manager, discusses with the staff trainee a new means of financing the yearbook. Instead of having a fashion show, contributions are made by each class and organization.

First Place

The 1964 RAIDORIAN is awarded the Class "A" honor rating for the first time.

The band begins its 1964-1965 session as a fifty piece marching unit, performing at all home games. The group also participates in a mass performance of high school bands at Northwestern University.

At the close of the football season, the organization increases its membership to seventy-two participants and begins to practice diligently on more serious music for the many approaching public appearances. Included among these appearances are the annual winter and spring concerts, band contest, the Little Ten Band Festival, and numerous ensemble events which are organized by the director.

The Earlville Marching Band forms the traditional letter "E" before playing the Fight Song to the tune of "Wave the Flag."

FACULTY

Mr. Herbert N. Wicke

Our Superintendent . . .

With the growth of our school have come added responsibilities to Mr. Wicke, now completing his eighth year as superintendent of the Earlville schools. Building maintenance, bookkeeping, transportation, cafeteria program, and public relations are all a part of his administrative duties. When, in his judgment, curriculum changes are needed, it is his responsibility to see that these changes are effected. This year, one of his major problems was the finding of several new teachers for one staff.

Mr. Herbert N. Rieke

Our New Principal

One of the major additions to our faculty this year is Mr. Herbert N. Rieke, principal of the high school. He received his bachelor's and master's degrees in education from Southern Illinois University, is a member of the Phi Delta Kappa fraternity, and has had several years of teaching experience. During the Korean War he served in the U.S. Navy and graduated from the Naval School of Photography. He is married and has four daughters.

In this, his first administrative position, he has provided invaluable assistance to Mr. Wicke. He also teaches one class in English.

MR. FORREST CARTER

MR. THEODORE ZIMMERMAN
President

MR. FRED TORMAN

Board Leads Drive for Better School

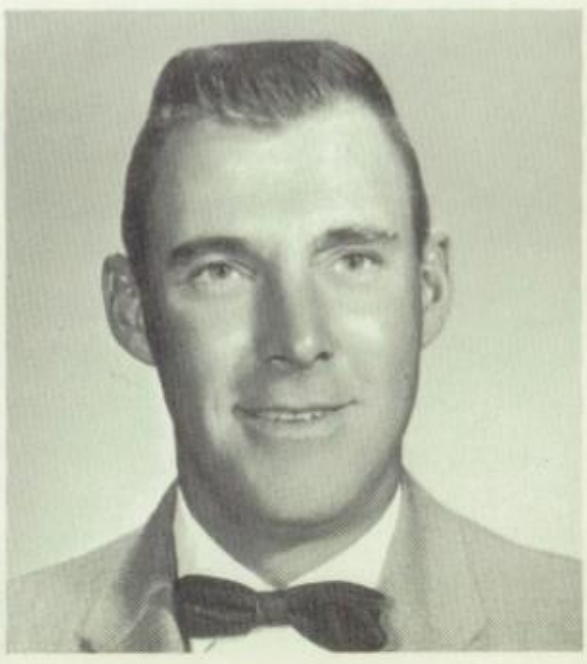
MR. ROGER JONES
MR. HAROLD GAST

Our seven-member Board of Education, along with the administrators, share the responsibility of promoting an efficient school system.

This year they presented to the community the new addition which was approved by the voters in the fall of 1963. Modernization of old facilities and the addition of thirteen rooms have provided opportunity for more effective study. This building program has made possible the separation of grade students from those of the high school. All of this work has given our school a new look for 1964-1965.

MR. MAYNARD MARTIN

MR. ROGER LARSON



Our cafeteria ladies, Mrs. Wolfe, Mrs. Harmon, Mrs. Sanders, and Mrs. Danielson enjoy the expanded kitchen facilities.

Our school custodians, Henry Goldman, James Atwell, and Forrest Vance have taken on increased responsibilities this year with the expansion of our school.

The bus drivers who transport us to and from school each day are Mr. Storkman, Mrs. Larson, Mrs. Yarnell, Mr. Lester, Mr. Ball, and Mr. Harris.

Mrs. Cole and Mrs. Larabee, our secretaries, perform the same essential tasks but in a new office. They are responsible for such duties as selling cafeteria tickets and distributing absentee slips, as well as the secretarial work.

Service and Smiles

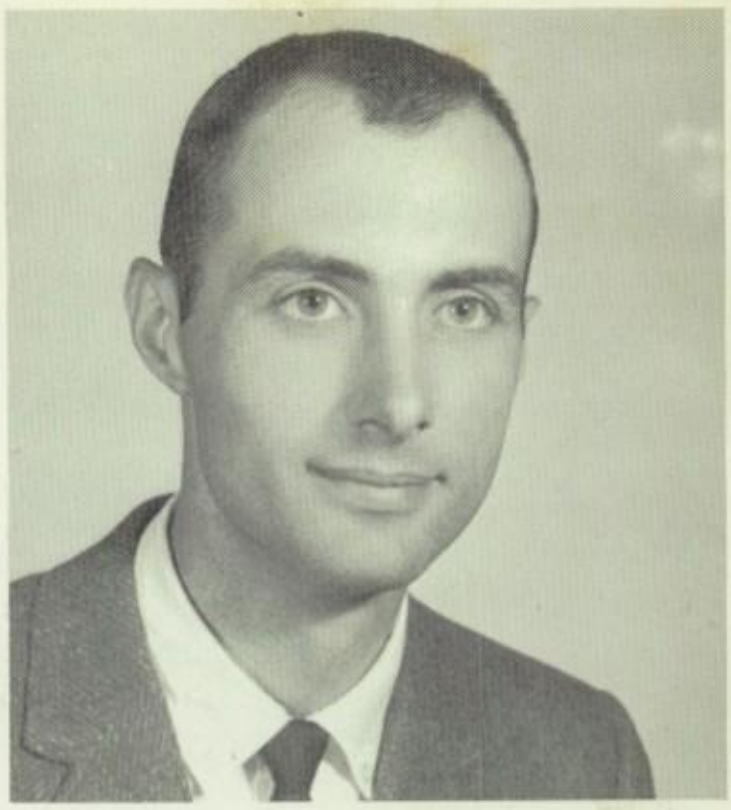
We Keep Them Busy

The study of plastic arts, offered in shop, gives the student a better technical background for the future.

Planing and Planting

Ag and Shop Enjoy New Facilities

MR. MONTOOTH. Agriculture I, II, III, and IV; Biology; F.F.A. Adviser.



MR. BALL. High School Industrial Arts I, II, III, and Iv; Jr. Hi. Industrial Arts; Jr. Hi. Social Studies; Junior Class Adviser.

Boys in the four year agriculture course are offered such studies as livestock, poultry feeding, disease, and crops, besides learning the skill of farm management and budgeting.

Members of the three industrial arts classes develop manual skills by learning to operate the equipment in the new workshop.

Students of the ag and shop classes have access to the facilities in the new area, located at the south end of the school building. Included in this new section are two classrooms and two workshops in addition to offices for Mr. Montooth and Mr. Ball.

Members of the agriculture classes discuss their projects for this year.

MISS SONDRA CURRY. Physical Education; G.A.A. Adviser; Pep Club Advisor.

Girls learn to appreciate the skill of a basketball game by participating in the sport.

Fitness and Fun

P. E. Provides Well-Aimed Vent for Energy

Physical education, a requirement for all students, offers a welcome opportunity to relax from the tension of the day. In such sports as volleyball, basketball, and tumbling, students develop agility and endurance. A much appreciated improvement this year is the addition of a clean towel service.

MR. LLOYD WINEBURNER. Physical Education; Director of Athletics.

Through active participation in physical education activities, the boys build strength and skill.

MRS. MARY FOUTS. Home Economics I, II, III and IV; Junior High Home Economics; Seventh Grade Homeroom; Usherette Adviser.

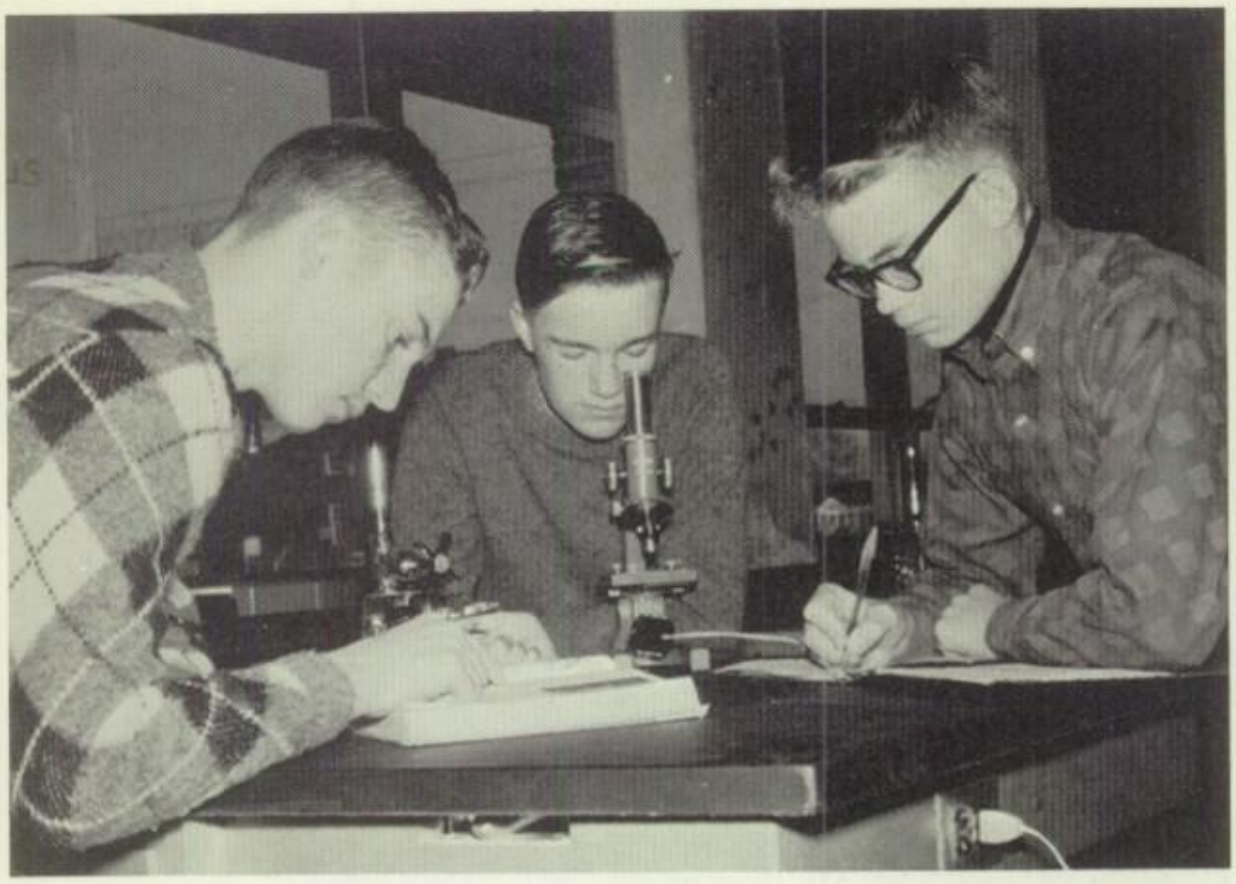
The girls in home economics learn to plan delicious meals on small budgets.

First year students find modern sewing machines convenient for making fashionable clothes.

"For We Are the Builders of Homes"

From the hum of the sewing machine to the aroma of well prepared food to the study of child development and care, preparation for adult living, and interior decorating--all of these are found within the department of home economics. Students enrolled in this course are taught with the most modern equipment and techniques which help to provide the student with extensive training and experience.

Reports are made to inform the seniors on different phases of cooking, sewing, and child management.



Biology students observe matter by means of a microscope.

Comets and Chemicals

Lab Sciences . . . Continuous Advancement

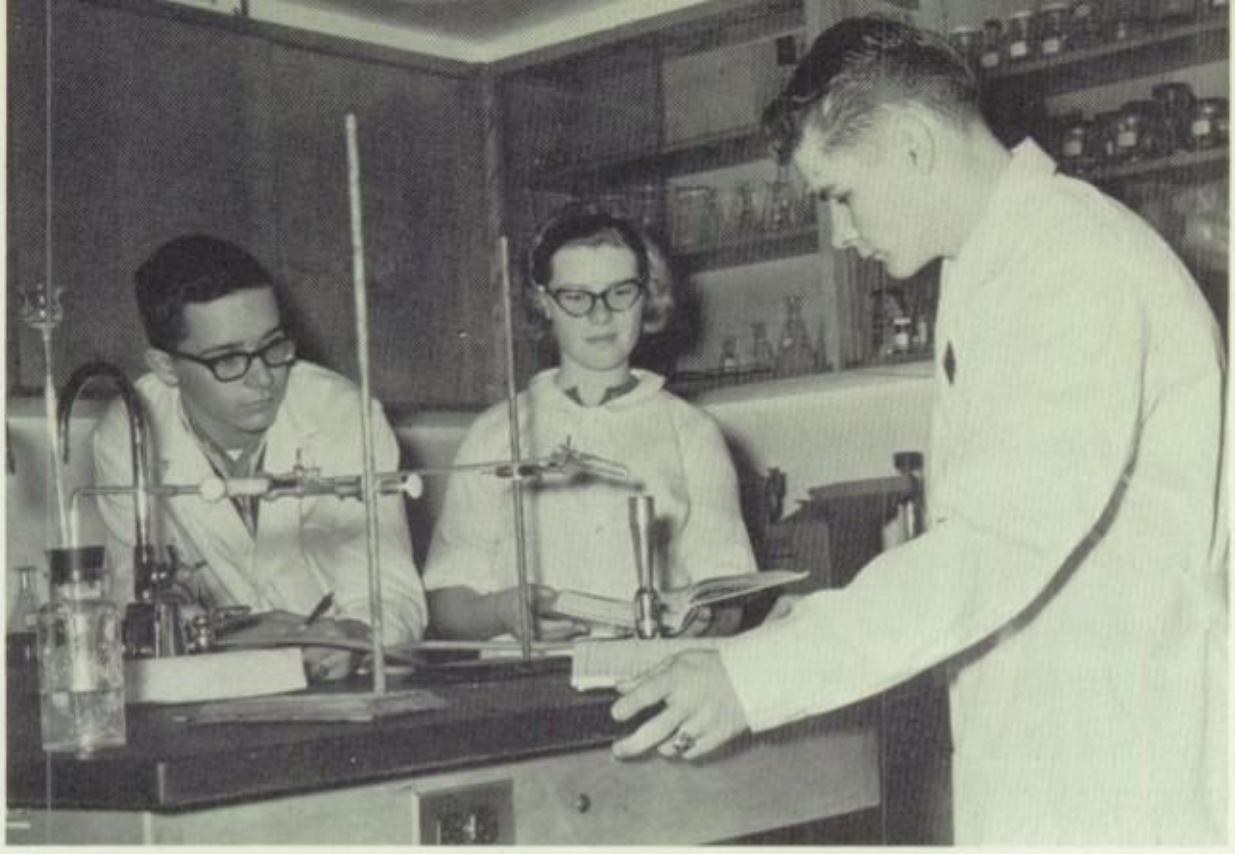
The Earlville department of sciences offers a wide variety of studies to all students. Freshman courses include general science, an overall view of our environment, and physical science, an introductory class in chemistry, physics, and astronomy.

Students of the sophomore class are participating in an experimental biology course--B.S.C.S. (Biological Sciences Curriculum Study). The approach taken is one of biochemical evolution. In the laboratory the student works almost entirely with living organisms and continually makes qualitative and quantitative measurements of biological systems. A regular biology course is still offered to interested students.

Chemistry and physics, taught in alternating years to juniors and seniors, are advanced courses designed to prepare students for college.

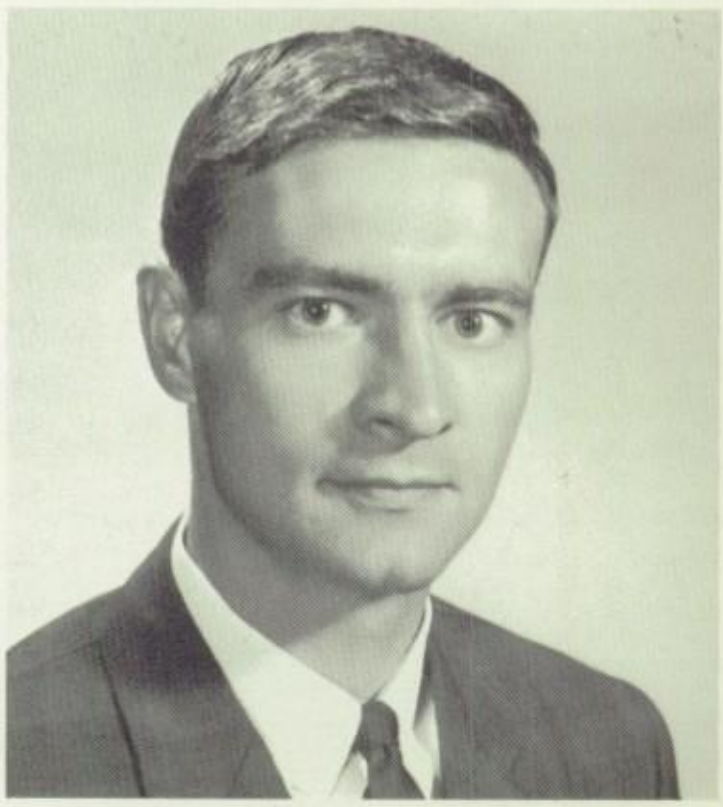
A twelve-week study in astronomy includes the use of the telescope by physical science students.

This new type of biology teaches students about the living organisms from a chemical standpoint.



Oxidation reduction reactions and many other chemical processes are studied by students of chemistry.

MR. BANN. B.S.C.S. Biology, Chemistry.

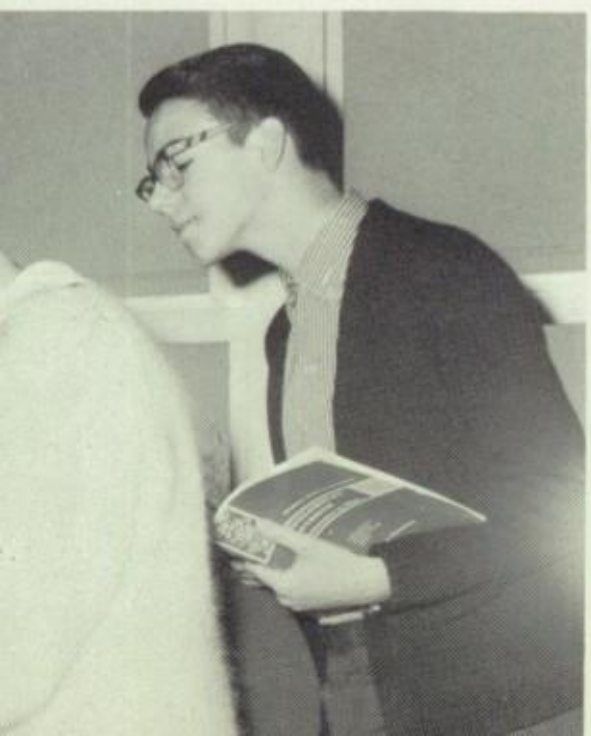


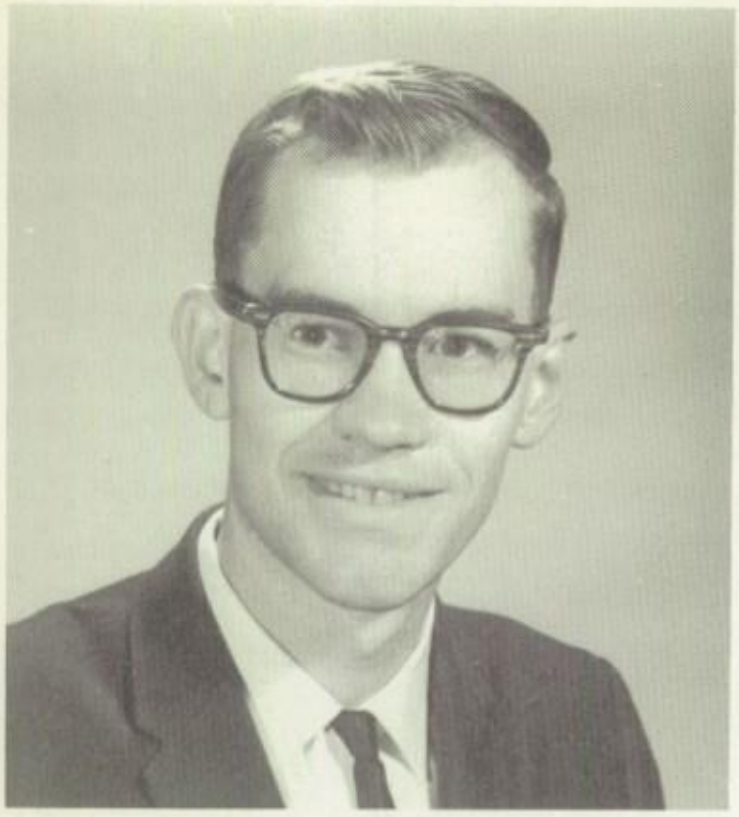
and New Facilities

The science lab-classroom has undergone a complete renovation this year. Six new storage-laboratory units provide two hundred equipment drawers and a greater working area. Fixtures at these units include standard gas valves and running water, as well as vacuum and air jets.

Other departmental improvements are a new demonstration desk and eleven student tables which have been installed in the lecture area.

General science students learn to operate a motor by disassembling it.





MR. JERRY HOLMAN. General Math, Algebra I and II, Geometry, College Algebra and Trigonometry; Junior Class Adviser.

During the course of the year, second year algebra students learn to plot and read graphs by several different methods. Near the close of the first semester, they also operate slide rules--the short cut to many problems.

Logic and Logarithms

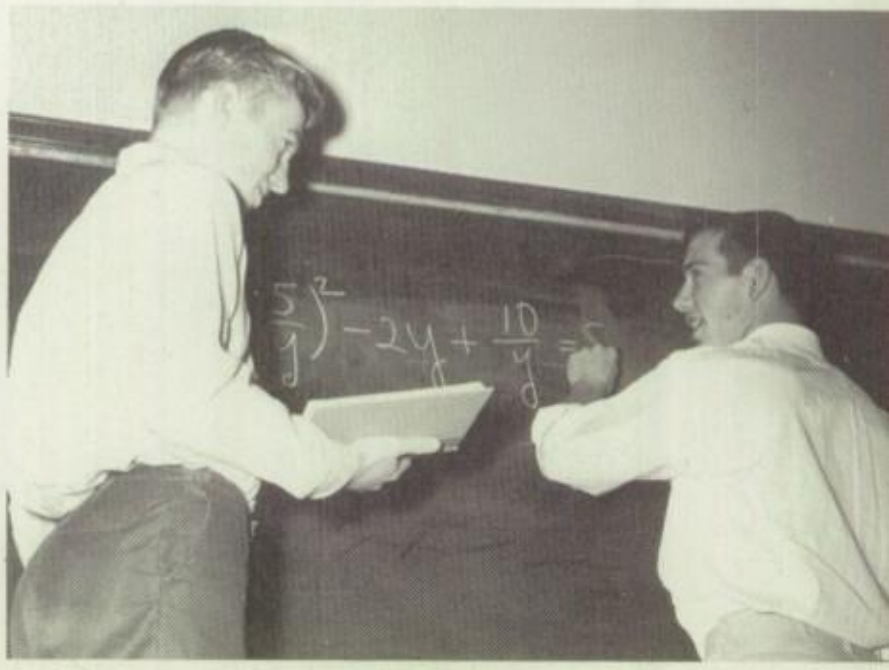
4th Year Math Course Reinstated

Geometry students must be able to solve theorems before they can do anything else in basic geometry.

Freshmen may choose either a general course or first year algebra, but they are required to complete one year of Math.

The fundamentals of mathematics which include general math, algebra, advanced algebra, and geometry are taught by Mr. Holman. College algebra and trigonometry, taught in alternating semesters to seniors only, have been re-established in the department this year. A minimum of five students is required to make up the course.

In college algebra and trigonometry, students compete for extra credit in the "race for top grades."



Throughout the school year members of the office practice class receive additional training by assisting in the school office.

When the typing room is unavailable, students have access to the four new combination typewriter-desks in the shorthand room.

Speed and Skill

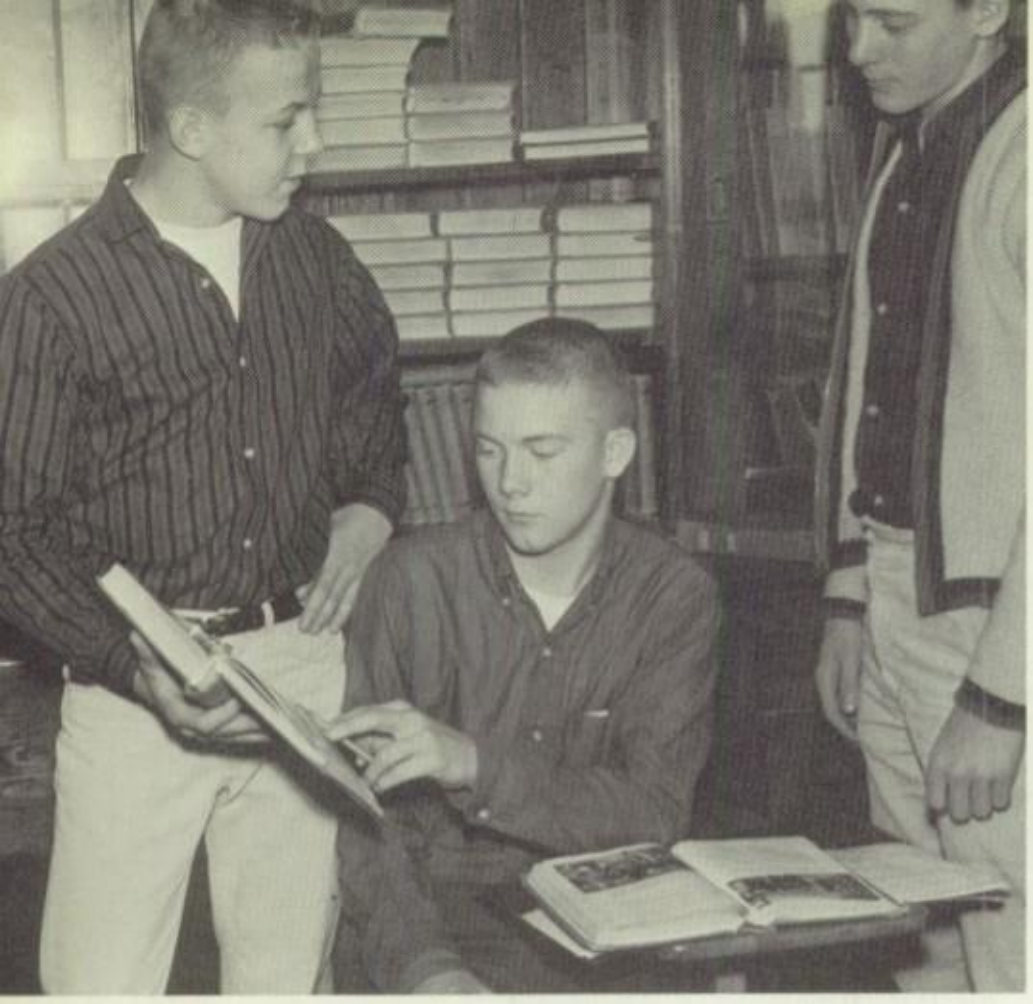
Secretaries Train by Daily Practice

Future secretaries, typists, and bookkeepers learn about business practices and techniques through one-year courses in typing, shorthand, bookkeeping, and office practice.

The two-room department, under the direction of one teacher, has manual and electric typewriters, two electric calculators, and two dictaphones.

MRS. CHLOTEEL LARGE. Typing, Shorthand, Bookkeeping, Office Practice; Study Hall Supervisor; Freshman Adviser; Yearbook Adviser.

The new Gregg shorthand system, the Diamond Jubilee Series, is in use by Earlville students for the second year.



World history students examine the past and present experiences of people around the world.

MR. GERALD TUFTIE. Social Problems, World History; Driver's Education; Head Basketball Coach, Assistant Football Coach, Head Track Coach.

Nations and News

Understanding the Present

The social studies department has a completely new staff this year. Mr. Donald Rose, who now teaches American history, requires each of the students in their junior course to complete one term paper and a book report on historical events. Current events are emphasized and the highlight of the week is the news discussion, conducted by a student, on Fridays.

Pupils in the world geography class, also taught by Mr. Rose, do map work and give outside reports. In addition, this year they made an analysis of the voting of each state.

The "Senior Scholastic" magazine provides social problems students with material for study of current problems.

World geography students learn to locate various places on maps in order to give them a better understanding of the needs and problems of the people of that region.

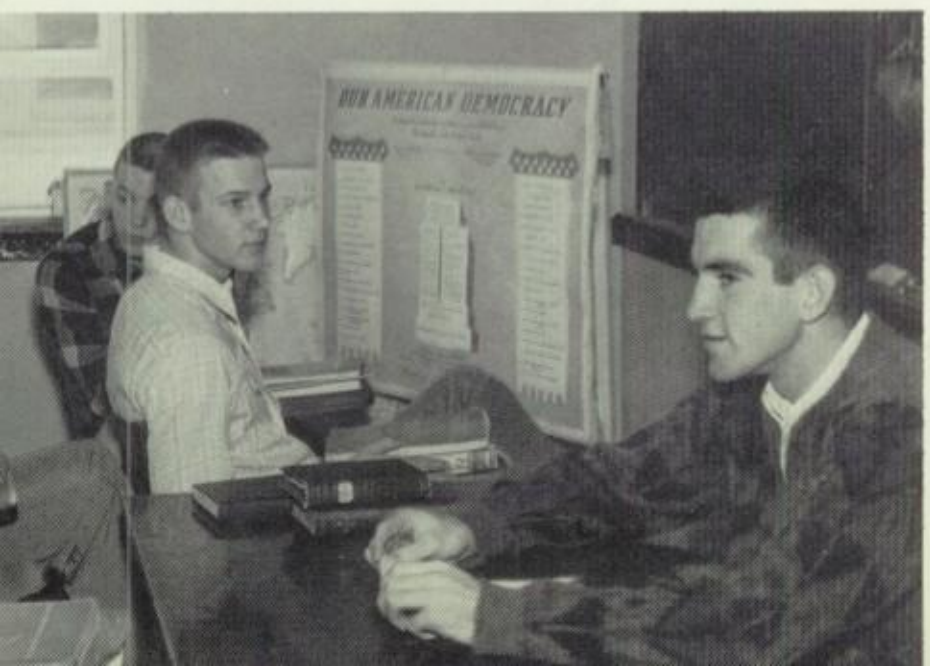
Through the Study of the Past

World history, a required subject in either the freshman or sophomore year, is taught by Mr. Tuftie. During the course of the year's study of effects and outcomes of historical events, each student must give a report on a famous person or event in history.

Mr. Tuftie also teaches social problems, a senior course in which the first semester of study involves world problems and the second semester deals with individual and small group problems. The "Senior Scholastic" magazine is one source of supplementary material which is used throughout the year. During the year each class member must give a report on some aspect of social problems.

MR. DONALD ROSE. American History, World Geography; Assistant Football Coach, Ninth Grade Football Coach; Sophomore Class Adviser.

Each American history student must give a report on a person or event important in history. Here the subject is "Thomas Jefferson."



MISS LINDA LOUDEN. English I and II; Senior Homeroom; Librarian.

By writing frequent compositions, the English I students learn to express themselves well.

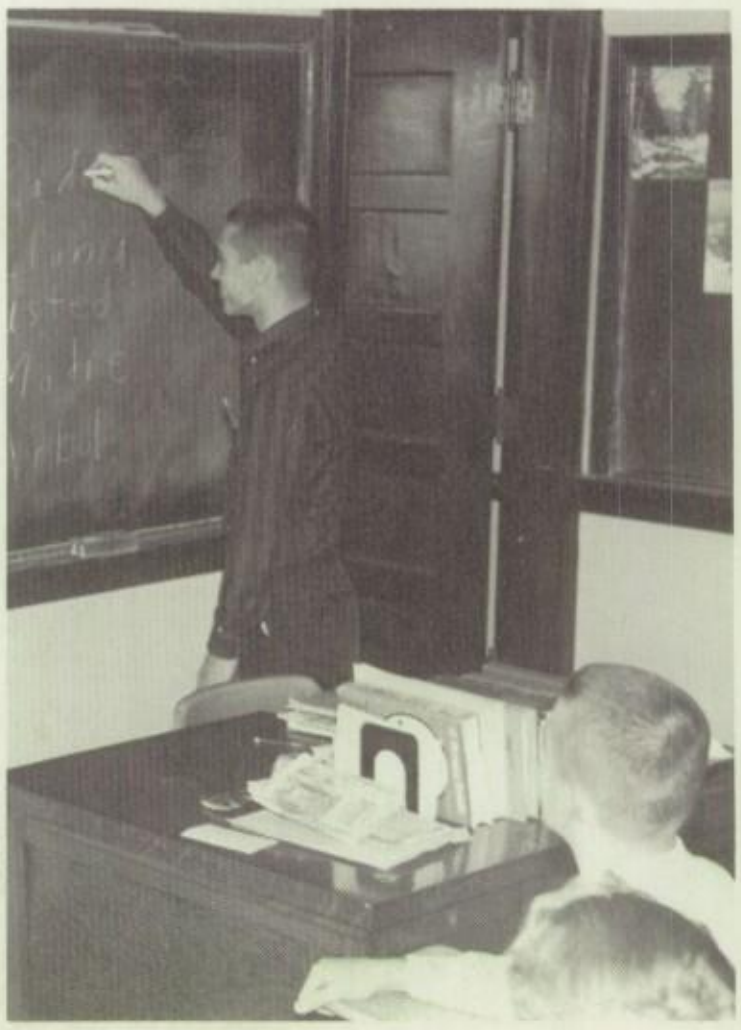
Readin' and Writin'

Language Department Obtains

Miss Louden, freshman and sophomore English teacher, emphasizes the importance of composition and outside reading in bettering the student's knowledge of the language. Each pupil must give either an oral or written book report once every two weeks.

With the help of Charlene Hatland, Paul Martin reviews the correct procedure for diagramming a sentence--one of the fundamentals learned in sophomore composition.

First year Spanish students learn to translate the language through a study of grammar.



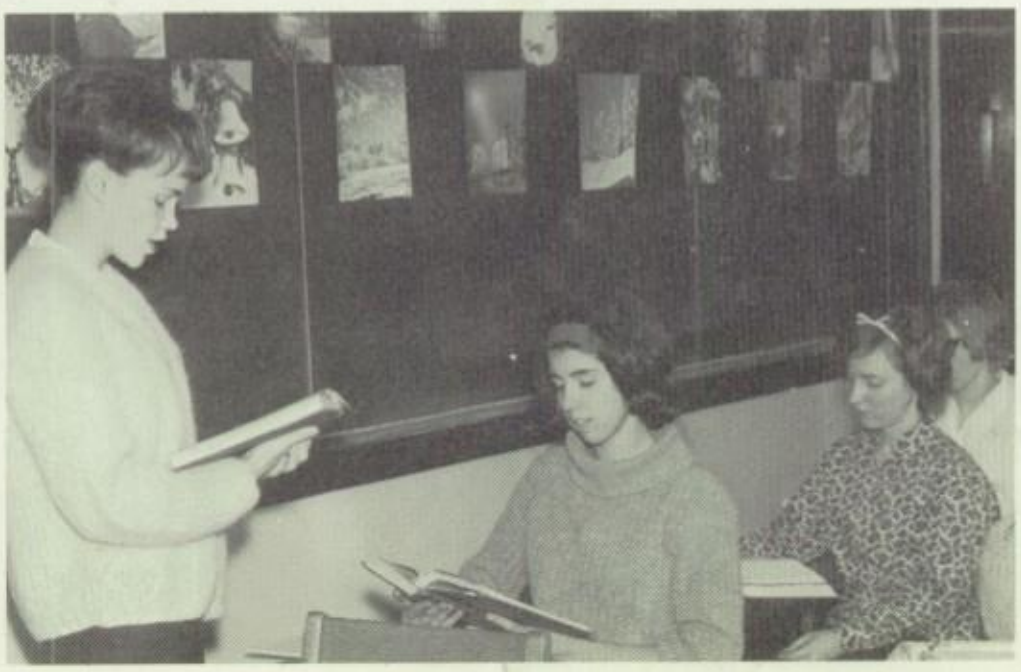
MRS. HELEN ZERKEL. English III and IV, Spanish I and II; Senior Homeroom; Junior Play.

Spanish II students attack the complexities of the subjunctive mood conjugation, a verb form not found in the English language.

New Instructors

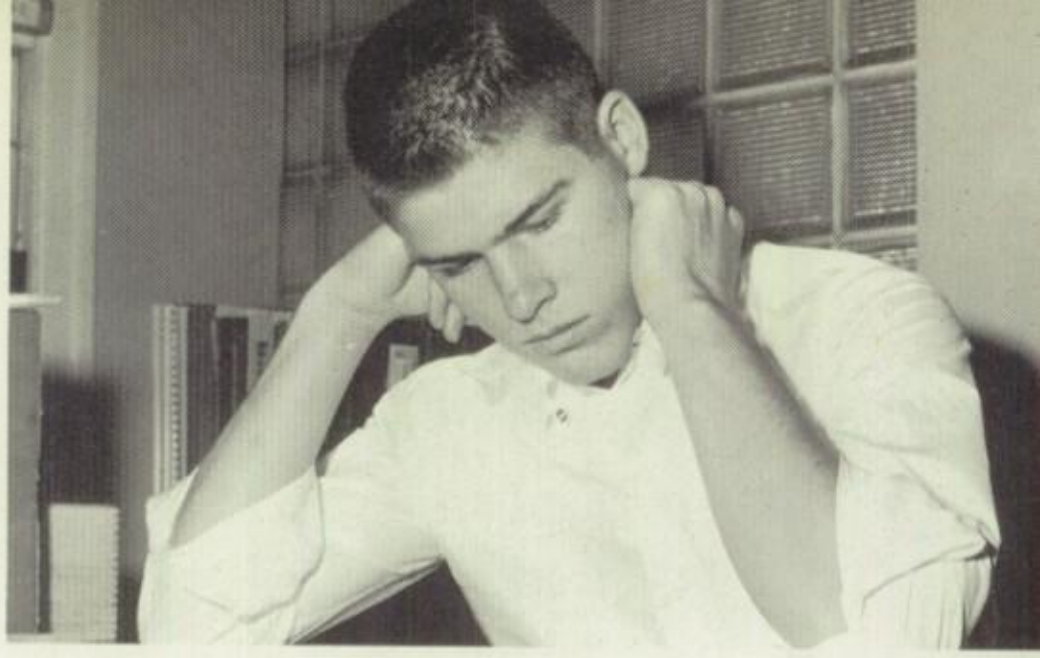
Each six weeks, Mrs. Zerkel's junior and senior English students are required to complete a notebook which includes the material covered during the school year. This year the juniors are studying American Literature which is in conjunction with American History. When they are seniors, they will study English Literature.

Students of English IV study the poetry of great writers of modern and medieval times.



English III students get a better understanding of literature by oral discussion and interpretation of poetry.

Students are encouraged to use the catalogues and other information found in Mr. Storkman's office.



MR. ALBERT STORKMAN. Director of Guidance, Physical Science, General Science; Study Hall Supervisor; Seventh Grade Advisor.

Our new guidance counselor, Mr. Storkman, effectively administers a program that directs E.H.S. students to work for which they are best suited. He supervises all phases of the testing program and helps students plan their courses of study. To accomplish this, he interviews each student twice during the school year, providing him with test results and college or trade school information.

An added feature of the counseling department this year is the new office. It contains a library of current catalogues for those students who wish to further their education.

Acceleration and Accidents

Exploring Skills for the Future

Before actual driving experience can begin, a driver education student must first understand the controls.

According to state law, a course in driver education is required for all sophomores. Each student must complete the nine-week classroom phase, taught by Mr. Tuftie, and spend a minimum of six hours driving under his supervision. A safeguard for beginning drivers under sixteen years of age makes them ineligible to operate an automobile unless they are with a trained instructor.

The car for driving instruction is provided by local Chevrolet and Ford dealers in alternate years.

Businessmen Contribute $495.50

Each year the merchants of Earlville and surrounding towns make substantial contributions toward the publication of our yearbook.

Those who gave $5, $10, $15, or $20 are listed as sponsors and those who gave $3 are listed as patrons. One asterisk, preceding a name, indicates a gift of $10; two, a gift of $15; three a gift of $20. One anonymous donator contributed $7.50 toward the yearbook.

High School—the Foundation of Our Future

As we pause on the threshold of the future, we are overcome for a moment by memories of the past. We recall how, aided by our teachers, we have carefully laid stone upon stone in the gradual development of becoming citizens of tomorrow. Through classroom activities, athletics, and participation in various organizations, we have slowly, and sometimes painfully, laid the foundations upon which we hope to build useful and effective lives. And may we never forget that we must continue always to build on this foundation if we are to grow in wisdom and in character.
